

Dr. Shannon Hinton

Dr. Shannon Hinton joins the practice from New Bolton Center in Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, where she completed a three-year residency in large animal surgery. During internship and residency, she participated in research projects focusing on gastrointestinal disease (colic), castration techniques, shockwave therapy and advanced imaging of the larynx.

Dr. Hinton has been involved with horses since a young age, getting her first pony at four years old. Her family bred and raised Quarter horses and she grew up riding and showing, primary in western events. Dr. Hinton attended Auburn University for her undergraduate studies. She earned her veterinary degree from Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine. After veterinary school, she completed a private practice internship at New Jersey Equine Clinic. She then completed a rotating internship at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center, which focused on internal medicine, surgery and emergency/critical care, before staying on to complete a large animal surgery residency. Her professional interests include lameness, orthopedics and upper airway surgery. Outside of work, Dr. Hinton enjoys cooking, baking and being outside.
